Hades, the Intermediate State.

SERMON PREACHED BY REV. E. F. ORR,

OF THE METHODIST CHURCH.

"And I saw, and behold, a pale horse, and he that sat upon him, his name was Death, and Hades followed with him." Rev. VI, 8.

The great question which has always agitated the human mind is, What follows death?

"Soon as from earth I go
What will become of me?"

Does death end all? Or if man lives in a future state, what are the conditions of that life? Or if the bodies which are buried are to rise, what about the intermediate state? Is it an unconscious sleep? or a vague shadowy land of ghosts, visions, and dreams? Such are the questions which have descended to Hades.

"When he appeared among the dusty coils
Thou art shrouded in vacancy gloom."

Or is it a state of real existence, where the same persons who have lived upon earth appear there as real as when here? To such questions as these there have been a thousand different answers, founded upon speculations. Such speculations, while they may be pleasant, are necessarily fruitless, and for the reason that we have no certain data from which to reason. There may be no doubt, however, many things in nature, which to the carnal mind, indicate a future life, yet there is nothing which absolutely demonstrates it. And for the reason that the very nature of the subject places it beyond the reach of demonstration by philosophy.

But we have another method of research and discovery than that of human speculation. While the spirit world is beyond our sight, our natural powers of discovery, yet it may be revealed to us. Just as Europe was once unknown to America and was beyond the reach of discovery to the savage American, but the European came to America, and revealed Europe to him; just so the spirit world has been revealed to us.

We are therefore dependent upon Revelation for all we know about it. We have not seen it, but who have gone there have remained. The text says Hades follows death. But what is Hades? The etymological meaning of the word is unseen, and it is used in the Bible as the designation of the state immediately following death. The Savior entered Hades after his death on the cross. At Pentecost, Peter, in his sermon, quotes the 10th Psalm, "Thou wilt not leave my soul in Hades," neither suffer thy Holy one to see corruption," and says David spoke this as a prophecy of the resurrection of Christ.

The Savior represents the rich man as appearing immediately after death in Hades, and that is what Hades is. It is a conscious state, not a sleep.

"I do not believe the story
Of ages sleep to the tomb."

The Savior who came forth from the spirit world to reveal it to us, his veil, and permits us to look, and see its conditions, and there we behold two men who once lived upon earth, the rich man and Lazarus, and alive, they are conversing. And their life is as real as life and consciousness are on this side the grave.

2. Both the righteous and wicked enter Hades after death. They do not mingle together, are separate but both are there. The Savior as we have seen was in Hades between his death and his resurrection. "His soul was not left in Hades, neither did his flesh see corruption." And yet he was to the dying thief who repented, "This day shalt thou be with me in paradise." Then paradise must be in Hades. In Mr. Wesley's notes on Luke 16 he says, "It will be observed that the rich man and Lazarus are both in Hades, though in different departments of it." The ancient Greeks had the idea that Hades was composed of two departments, Paradise or Elysium, and Tartarus, the one the abode of the righteous, the other of the wicked. And with this the Savior seems to agree. And St. Peter tells us II Pet. 2:4 that the "Angels that sinned were cast down to hell (Tartarus) reserved under clouds of darkness until the judgment." There, then, fallen angels, and the souls of wicked men are imprisoned, while the righteous are in Paradise, awaiting the final judgment, but both Tartarus and Paradise are in Hades.

3. Hades is to the righteous a state of happiness, and to the wicked a state of torment. We are not told in what consists the happiness of the righteous or the torment of the wicked. We are only told that Lazarus was "comforted," and that the rich man was "tormented." And that the rich man was "tormented" is shown by the fact that he was in Hades, for he was not comforted, for they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." And the rich man lifted up his eyes in torment, and was tormented in the flame. But this is enough. The righteous "rest" and are "comforted" till and labor are over, rest has come and it comes immediately after death. Slanting their eyes upon one world, they open their eyes upon the other. But while we are only told that the righteous rest, etc., there is something else said about their exchange of worlds, from which we infer a source of happiness. Lazarus was carried by Angels to Abraham's bosom. Then the righteous as soon as they are delivered from the body have the association and guardianship of the angels till they reach the association of the "spirits of just men made perfect." Lazarus was with Abraham. What a pleasant thought, that as soon as the spirit leaves the presence of friends upon earth it appears among the good and great of the past, who have died, as well as among his own immediate friends and loved ones who have lived in the Lord. It is said the rich man was tormented in a flame, yet we are not to suppose it a literal material flame, as the spirit would not be hurt by a material flame; spirit is not subject to a material law. But the rich man had enough else to produce torment, without a literal fire. He had set his heart upon wealth, and all the habits of his affectional nature were formed under the domination of avarice, and now he has awakened to a world with that same nature and habits where there is nothing, absolutely nothing to gratify it. He has lived wholly for the world, and has left the world behind him, so he has awakened to an eternal pauper. The victim now of his own "shame, and everlasting contempt." Then remorse for his sins, regret for the lost opportunities, shame for the wasted energies of his life, and last of all, the certain fearful looking for of the judgment and fiery indignation which shall at last condemn him to eternal punishment, would produce a flame of which a material fire would be but a feeble emblem.

4. Character is permanent in Hades. There are no changes of character. "He that is righteous, let him be righteous still." Between the rich man and Abraham there was a "great gulf fixed" so that there was no passing between them. This is not a material gulf but the permanency of nature's laws. A course of sin once begun can only be arrested by the interposition of Divine power, such as is displayed in the gospel, and when the soul enters Hades in sin, it passes beyond where this power is ever offered. Salvation is all on this side of the grave. The soul that enters the spirit world in sin will go to the judgment a sinner. There is no probation after death.

5. The souls of men meeting in Hades recognize and know each other, the rich man saw and recognized not only the beggar who had him at his gate but also Abraham whom he had never seen. In the 14th chapter of Isaiah the prophet describes the descent of the spirit of Nebuchadnezzar into Hades, and represents the spirits there as coming forth to meet him with reproaches, "Hades from beneath is moved to meet thee at thy coming, how art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer son of the morning!" How art thou come down to the sides of the pit, thou art become like one of us. They recognized the spirit of the King as the one who possessed such great might on earth. What great consolation in this. Those who have known and loved each other, may meet again and love and know forever.

"I shall join the loved and just ones
In that land of perfect day,
Happily to dwell with angel fingers
Among the sweet song singers.
I shall know each other there."

6. Hades is not the final, but only the temporary abode of departed spirits. In the first chapter of Revelation, John saw a vision of the Living Christ in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks, and heard him saying, "I am the first and the last, the first and the last, the first and the last, and behold I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of Hades and of death." This was spoken to comfort the church in severe persecution when many were being put to death, but taught them they should not fear to die, for he had died and was alive again, and would never die again, and as the result of this he had the keys of Hades, and death, was able to deliver their souls from Hades and their bodies from death. Again in I Cor. 15th chapter, after an elaborate argument by the Apostle to show that because Christ rose from the dead, that therefore all men should rise, the Apostle exultingly says "O death where is thy sting? O Hades where is thy victory?" thereby proclaiming that death and Hades should lose their prize, the result of his glorious resurrection in power. Again, in Revelation 20:14, we have a representation of the appearance of the judgment throne, and the rising of the dead, where it is said, "And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and Hades delivered up the dead which were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works." Here we have death delivering the bodies of men, and Hades their souls to be judged, and awarded their final destiny. While the righteous in Hades were happy, it has only been rest and comfort from sorrow and labor, not reward, and while the wicked have been tormented, it has been only the eternal punishment which is their final destiny. With the certain assurance of conviction and punishment. But now Hades yields them up, the righteous from Paradise or Elysium, the wicked from Tartarus, where they have been confined under chains of darkness awaiting the judgment. They all come forth now to be judged, and awarded to their final destiny. The righteous from Paradise or Elysium, the wicked from Tartarus, where they have been confined under chains of darkness awaiting the judgment. They all come forth now to be judged, and awarded to their final destiny. The righteous from Paradise or Elysium, the wicked from Tartarus, where they have been confined under chains of darkness awaiting the judgment. They all come forth now to be judged, and awarded to their final destiny.

When Tried Always Preferred.
When they once become acquainted with it, ladies invariably prefer Parker's Hair Balsam to any similar preparation. It makes the hair soft and glossy, arrests its falling off, promotes new growth, restores the original color, and has no rival as a dressing. Not a dye, not oily, highly perfumed. Only 50c. at druggists.

"You Can't Afford To Miss It."
"An eight-page, forty-column weekly a whole year for only 50 cents." This is the offer made by the publishers of the American Rural Home, of Rochester, N. Y., to all persons who send in their year's subscription before April 1st, 1885. This is an opportunity to secure one of the best farm journals in the world at a bargain. The Rural is the brightest, cheapest and most popular weekly published for the farmer and his family. It is not a paper of mushroom growth, like many so-called farm journals that are at present being extensively advertised, but has been published regularly for fifteen years. Many of the ablest agriculturists and horticulturists write for it. It is, in short, the model journal for those who dwell in village and country homes, and should be the first one subscribed for after your local paper. We are acquainted with both paper and publishers and cheerfully recommend it to our readers as a first-class agricultural journal, worth twice the money asked for it. The regular price is one dollar a year in advance, but the special offer of fifty cents will be accepted if sent in before April 1st, 1885. Remember, this is no humbug, but a genuine bona fide proposition to furnish for fifty cents a year the only eight-page, forty-column agricultural weekly ever offered at that price. Address,

A Hearty Old Lady.
An old lady in Rhode Island who is one hundred years of age, brings in all her firewood and then splits it to pieces. Iron in the blood, don't you see? If your blood is thin and poor, what you need is Brown's Iron Bitters. This prince of tonics contains the only preparation of iron which you can take with safety to your stomach, and general health. Mrs. Chas. Dugan, Zanesville, O., says, "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility and nervousness, and am now well."

AN ESSAY ON BUTTER-MAKING.
Bill Nye Writes Learnedly on his Particular Fine Art.

Butter is the nature fruit of the full-blown cow. It is the greatest of her life. The cow tells me, neither does she spin, yet I say unto you that Solomon in all his glory could not better her on hand-made, or rather milk-made butter. This subtle joke I have repaired, and newly appointed for use during the winter.

Butter comes from the cow in a liquid state. It is quite a trick to win her confidence so that she will yield it up to a stranger. I once sought to win the best of this milk and milk rector of a large speckled cow to whom I was a comparative stranger. She wasn't one of those blooded cows that look as though they have been cut out of a sheet of paper with a pair of scissors. She was a low cow, with coarse instincts, born in obscurity.

Her low was low, but she wore her tail high and she was haughty—oh, so haughty. The young man who had inherited acquired the milk from this cow desired one evening to bid him away in a neighboring village, where he might trip the light fantastic toe till the wee sma' hours about the twa' (Quotation from a poet who was a poor speller). He wanted me to milk his large, speckled pelted cow, and I said I would. The movement was certainly ill-advised. I undertook to do as I had agreed, but failed. From the moment I entered her stall and made a common place remark to her, I knew our acquaintance would not lead to a warm attachment. Somehow I felt constrained and uneasy in her society from the moment we met until loving friends pulled me through the stable window and brought me back to consciousness. I shall never undertake to milk a strange cow again until the sign is right. So far the sign has not been right.

I might be sent on a polar expedition and get stranded on an iceberg, with no other alternative but to milk a cow or eat an old friend, but I should hate to tackle the cow unless the friend was a very old friend, indeed.

Butter is produced by expunging the juice from a rare and costly chemical known as cream. Cream is the food on the milk. Milk is known as dry and extra dry. A good milkman will always ask you whether you want your milk wet or otherwise.

An old well digger named Grady told me once that he was in Southern Indiana at one time to dig a well for a man named Withum. Withum was said to be very close. He was the most contiguous man in Indiana. His wife used to skim the milk on one side and then turn it over and skin the bubbles off. It was a constant struggle between Withum and his wife to see who would be the meaner.

The first day that Grady was there they had a round ball of butter about as big as a lemon and as hard as a marble's heart. The butter-knife had a handle that would turn every time any one tried to get a lick at the butter, and the little round ball would drop over on the other side and smile.

Now and then a hired man would reach over with his knife and make a slash at the butter, but the butter, confident of its own strength, would tip over with a dull thud, and the man would leave a sigh and give it up. Then another farm hand would make a wild dash at it, but burst into tears and quit. Finally Grady, who had watched this performance several days, jabbed his fork down through the middle of the yellow chunk, and succeeded in cutting two. In the center was a small, solid wooden top. "There," says Grady, "I've found out what the blundering thing is wound on, anyhow."

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.
For April is a particularly interesting number, and he who does not find much in it to please him must be very hard to suit. It begins with the opening chapters of Parson's new story, "Love's Harvest," which promises to be equal to the other stories of this favorite writer. Three additional chapters of Mrs. Farners' "What She Made of Her Life" are given, and also three of the juvenile story, "Pen's Perplexities." Adelaide C. Waldron contributes a beautiful sonnet, "An Easter Lily," and there are other true poems. The Rev. Dr. A. A. E. Taylor has a characteristic article on "The Red Boy as a Moral Reformer," and the Rev. Dr. T. D. Witherspoon a beautiful one on "The Alpine Horn." Mrs. Alexander's "Sisterhood of Spinners" is a pungent, though good-natured, piece of satire. The veteran Thomas Powell contributes "A Personal Reminiscence of Spohr and Mendelssohn" and Cherubini and Mercadante are the subjects of the "Sacred Musicians" series. The "Glances at Bible History" and "Christ Teaching by Parable" are continued, and both very interesting; and the venerable continuance of the Rev. Dr. Prime, a representative religious journalist, accompanies a fac-simile reduction of the first page of the New York Observer, which he has so long edited. These are only a small portion of the contents and, indeed, the whole number is exceptionally good. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York, at 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid.

Cancers Conquered.
The Swift Specific Company have the most indubitable evidence as to the cure of Cancer by their famous medicine, S. S. S. Among others, John S. Morrow, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Florence, Ala., makes the following statement as to the merits of this remedy:
"I have been suffering with a Cancer in my right ear, for about three years. I tried various remedies and was treated with iodine of Potash, which produced rheumatism. My feet and legs were greatly swollen, so that I could not walk. About one year ago I was induced to try Swift's Specific, which soon removed the trouble in my limbs, and my rheumatism is now entirely gone, and my Cancer is steadily improving, being better now than at any time within two years. This medicine has done me more good than anything else I have taken, and I feel that I am on the road to a speedy cure. Undoubtedly Swift's Specific is the best blood purifier in the world."

The New Cabinet.
* N. Y. SUN.
SIR:—MR. BAYARD, (Navy)—MR. WHITNEY, (Treasury)—MR. MANSFIELD, (War)—MR. ESCHMUTH, (Interior)—MR. LAMAR, (Post Office)—MR. VILAS, (Justice)—MR. GARLAND, (Agriculture).

This is a solid and competent Cabinet. No one can question the fitness of Mr. Bayard to take charge of the Navy, the President's Secretary, the Treasury, the President is fortunate in securing a man with so much judgment, moderation, dignity, and power as Mr. Manning.

Mr. Lamar is a man of genius. The affairs of the Interior Department are vast and complicated. We look to see them well conducted by the new Secretary. He is the first Southerner in a high executive post since 1861, and the country gladly welcomes his advent.

Against Mr. Garland we have objected with earnestness, on the ground that on many important questions his opinions are Federalist, and not Democratic; but of his ability as a lawyer there can be no question.

Mr. Whitney, who takes the Navy Department, is comparatively a young man, but he has been in Congress and has held no important State office; but he has distinguished himself as Corporation Counsel in the city of New York. He goes into one of the most important places of the government. We shall be greatly disappointed if he does not fill it to the public advantage.

Mr. Endicott has gained distinction as a Judge. He is a conservative Democrat of Massachusetts, and has never belonged to any other party. His appointment to the War office is wise and commendable.

In a political sense the place to be filled by Mr. Vilas is the most influential in the Cabinet. No other member of it comes so much in contact with the people, or holds such means of affecting the acts of his party.

The fact, resting in the Cabinet that will be particularly criticised is the presence in it of two New Yorkers, Messrs. Manning and Whitney; and the question which will be most dwelt upon the politics of New York and upon the next State election. What will that influence be? Will it strengthen the Democracy in the contest of next fall or not? We think it will tend to strength, and not to weakness; and for this reason we are disposed to approve it.

From a single grain of wheat planted in 1831, says the Grand Valley (Cal.) Record, grew twenty-two stalks, each bearing a full head. These yielded 860 grains, 760 of which were planted the next spring, producing one-fifth of a bushel of splendid wheat. This was planted last spring, yielding seventeen bushels, making 1,020 pounds of wheat from one grain in three years.

A new word—"litterarian," a person devoted to literary pursuits—is proposed by the Literary World, which says: "Litterarian is foreign; literary men is awkward, besides being restricted in gender; litterarian, following the analogy of 'parliamentarian,' is natural; it is also sensible, euphonious and convenient."

KENTUCKY KNOWLEDGE
Zachary Taylor, a nephew of the President of the same name, died in Owensboro last week, aged 53 years. His widow is a niece and the adopted daughter of Geo. D. Prentice.

The Grand Lodge of Kentucky, Knights of Honor, will meet at Louisville April 14th.

Frank Snyders, a Knott county farmer, was shot dead in his yard by an unknown assassin, one night last week.

A Democratic primary election to nominate two candidates for the legislature will be held in Warren county next Saturday. Wm. Meredith, W. T. Cox and J. G. Crockett are the candidates.

SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM - Editor.

FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1885.

President Cleveland was 48 years old yesterday.

Gen. Grant's condition is reported slightly improved, but it is still far from hopeful.

Hon. Jos. E. McDonald and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher were among the President's noted callers this week.

England and Russia are still at daggers' points, but there is a chance that hostilities may be avoided and a friendly settlement made.

Attorney General Geo. A. Gray has been elected to the United States Senate from Delaware to fill out Senator Bayard's unexpired term.

The candidates for postmaster at Vancuburg, held a primary election to settle their claims. Jos. Sparks was elected by a small majority.

Walter Evans, ex-Commissioner of Internal Revenue, has written a card complaining because he was "removed," instead of being allowed to "resign" his office.

Portland, Maine, elected a Democratic Mayor last week in a hotly contested race. One of the wards went Democratic for the first time in twenty years.

The public Library Committee, of Concord, N. H., have unanimously decided to exclude Mark Twain's new book, "Huckleberry Finn," from the shelves of that institution, as flippant, irreverent and trashy.

The next total eclipse of the sun visible in the United States will be in 1900. The last "total" eclipse was in November 1881, when the Republican party played in the role of the sun.

Postmaster Rich, of Camden, Me., has resigned, giving as a reason that the office should be filled by one in accord with the administration. Will all the postmasters follow the example of this rich man? Nay, verily.

The latest news from the Illinois deadlock is that Speaker Haines will vote with the Republicans for an adjournment sine die, leaving the appointment of a Senator with the Governor, in which event Logan will be appointed.

The Arkansas Legislature has come to a deadlock over the election of a Senator to succeed Attorney General Garland. Berry and Dunn are the leading candidates. The Republicans have no show and the fight is between rival Democrats.

Hon. Hunter Wood has returned from Washington feeling very comfortable over his prospects for appointment as District Collector. He received a very strong endorsement from the entire delegation of Kentucky Congressmen, with one exception and also from other influential sources. His appointment at an early date to the position now filled by Collector Farley, is considered one of the certain events of the future, by those in a position to know.

The following nominations were made by the President Wednesday: Milton J. Durham, of Kentucky, first controller of the treasury; Wm. Garrard, of Nevada, superintendent of the mint at Carson City, Nev.; Jos. B. Ryan, of Nevada, coinier of the mint at Carson City, Nev.; Matecomb Hay, of Pennsylvania, first assistant postmaster general; Martin V. Montgomery, of Michigan, commissioner of patents; David S. Baker, jr., of Rhode Island, U. S. attorney for the district of Rhode Island; Benj. Hill, jr., of Georgia, U. S. attorney for the Northern district of Georgia.

The late contest for the position of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, between Phil Thompson, of Kentucky, and Jos. S. Miller, of West Virginia, was ended Monday by the appointment of Miller. In the race Carlisle espoused Thompson's cause while Randall favored Miller, and the friends of Randall are claiming the appointment is a victory over Carlisle and a black eye to tariff reform. It is not probable this issue cut any figure in the matter. Thompson was rejected because of his residence in the great liquor center and his connection with the liquor interests. Thompson was pushed by the entire Kentucky delegation, but Secretary Manning favored Miller and the President let him appoint the man of his choice. Miller is a man well qualified for the place and holds from a State that did her part nobly last fall.

Nothing of importance has been done in the Egyptian war this month. The latest news is that a slave girl who was in Khartoum when the city fell, states that a severe battle took place between Gordon's troops and the Arabs a fortnight before the city fell. A reinforcement of 25 per cent. of the present strength of the troops will be required before autumn, owing to sickness and death from heat. The camel drivers refuse to remain. The navigation of the Nile is difficult, and the transportation of the wounded is tedious.

Gen. Wolsley is still entrenched below Korfi, while Gen. Graham is at Suakin with reinforcements, but nothing can be done before fall. Espies continue to report that the Amhar tribe of Arabs will desert El Mahdi and join the British at the first favorable opportunity.

NEW ORLEANS.

"H. H. A" Takes in the Ex. and the Village of N. O.—He Sails the Ocean Blue, takes in the Gambling Dens and Winds up in the Cemetery.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Mar. 16, 1885.—Well, we have commenced to take in the sights, first yesterday morning we took in the wharf with its many steamers, tug and sail boats. Bands of music played on some of the boats that were making preparation to leave, as an inducement to passengers and other boats blew shrill whistles to make discordant the music of rival boats; mighty ships laden with wares from foreign countries swayed lazily and sluggishly at the wharf and tug and ferry boats ran hither and thither all around and among the ships like things of life. The "Man of War," "Tennessee," is anchored just out and small boats run to and from it every fifteen minutes, men hallooing and yelling, calling their own boats palaces and others "boxes," fruit vendors, sailors and loafers all make a very exciting sight and to a Hopkinsville man things were simply appalling. After coming back from the wharf we went out to see the Exposition; we did not examine it closely this time but merely took a hurried glance. If it was not for the Mexican and Belgian Art exhibit, I think the Art Gallery would not be very much. None of our masterpieces are on exhibition, and the principal ones that are exhibited we have seen before at Louisville or elsewhere. For instance—"The Song of a Shirt," by Hesley—Edsot discovering the Mississippi—"A Joint Investment" by Bricher, and many others. The collection is about the same size it was at Louisville, though I think not as fine, but in the Mexican and Belgian displays we find some grand pieces of Art, but we think that they brought only the work of their first Artists while America's display is made up of any thing that could be obtained. We did not admire the Statuary very much as only a few pieces appeared and they were both small and uninteresting; after examining the pictures we returned to the city and began our inspection of it. Our steps lead us into Royal street, we find a flight of broad stairs with "No. 18" written on the door and see a crowd within. We follow and find ourselves in one of the gilded palaces of the Southern gambler. Every game conceived of by the mind of man was being played here. Five hundred men in one game of "Keno," two Hazard tables, two Roulette tables, four Poker tables and every thing else out of which you could make money. Here the rough old sailor and the "Dandy Dude" were on friendly terms sitting side by side. The Texas cowboy and the unsophisticated rustic spent money alike, and the click of silver dollars could be heard over the entire room, as the results of different games were announced. These rooms are about the size of Holland's Opera House and are fitted up grandly. The second stories of two entire blocks on Royal street are fixed up for this purpose with communication with other, and thousands of dollars change hands nightly in them; our finances being limited and the walking from here to Hopkinsville not being very good now, we decided not to "tackle the tiger" and hence our description of him must here cease. Thursday morning up bright and early and down to the French market we go; well of all wonders on earth I think this the greatest mile I can go further. Think of four solid blocks of buildings in one Market House and every thing on earth for sale. We saw silk dresses on one stand and fishing worms on another close by; you could buy the dress and then go fishing for pleasure if you desired to; nothing that you could eat or wear was absent and it was the strangest sight we ever saw. You can see here represented every nation, kindred and tongue on the habitable globe. A great many negroes live in N. O. and nearly all the old women stick to the ancient custom of wearing large bandana handkerchiefs tied on the back of their heads like the children that were fashionable for white people to wear several years ago. Well, returning from the French Market (to which we will again pay our respects Sunday morning) we take a line of small cars running out to the Old "Spanish Fort" though why it is now called a Fort we are at a loss to determine, as nothing of the Fort but its historic recollections are now seen. The grounds are beautifully laid off into walks and gardens and beautiful buildings and towers are to be seen where the Fort once was thrown up. One pit is dug and live large alligators live in it; they are about seven feet in length and are as ugly as possible for anything to be; one wild cat, a skunk, a porcupine and one large eagle complete the list of animals here to be seen. Open air concerts are given every evening by a Mexican band and the time here was spent very pleasantly. But now comes our most enjoyable feat; we take a small sail boat or canoe as we call them and start on our trip to the West End. Just to think we sail out upon the bosom of a beautiful lake forty-three miles wide and sixty one miles long, and to add to our pleasure Providence seems to smile upon us and give us a southwest wind which made the lake so rugged and rough that our frail craft could hardly stand it; the old tar who guided our boat swore mighty oaths at the wind, water and tide, but this menial added to the romance of the trip. Some of the party, and there were only three of us, were sprayed and sprinkled until they got real wet, but as this did not happen to us, we enjoyed it the more.

We finally arrived safe and sound at what is here called West End. Here we find a great many bath houses, hotels, pools of gold and silver fishes, alligators and fast but not least the puzzle garden; this is merely a piece of ground planted with a shrub resembling our hedge plant and wired to keep you from breaking through the lines; they are arranged in angles, curves, circles and caves running under the ground. They are about thirty feet wide and two hundred feet long, and when you once get into the centre or even start in the edge it is almost impossible to find your way out unless you have some one to guide you. Leaving West End we stop off the cars to inspect the Cemeteries. No graves are dug here, every body is buried above ground and some fine monuments mark the graves of the dead. All the Cemeteries are on this route and it took us some time to inspect them. One monument that struck us particularly was that of Albert Sidney Johnston; a vast hollow earthen mound has been thrown up and upon this will be placed his monument. Within the mound a place is left for the coffin of each officer, who lost his life on the day that Gen. Johnston died and the coffin will be placed therein as soon as the mound is completed.

About fifty yards from one of the Cemeteries, "Buffalo Bill" gives daily exhibitions of his wild Western scenes. We saw his parade to-day and intend before we leave to take his show in, but did not have time to do it to-day. Returning from the Cemeteries we procure tickets and state rooms on the splendid steamer Jesse K. Bell for the Jetties and expect, barring accidents, to see the Great Gulf before to-morrow night. This eve we went to the Academy of Music to see "Called Back" played by one of the Madison Square companies. It was a great performance and played by a splendid troupe. W. J. Ferguson, who played the "Dude" in Hopkinsville is playing in the cast—he plays the third part, so you must know it is a good troupe. Kate Claxton plays in a list just opposite our boarding house and has been playing there for a week; have not been to see her yet. Next Sunday, Flora Moore plays "A Bunch of Keys," I expect to see her by all means. Have met a great many Hopkinsville people since I arrived here; saw Maj. Breathitt, Miss Lizzie Breathitt, Miss Bettie Emma and Lee Campbell and Ben Rawlins to day, also Mrs. W. T. Blakemore. Will write again when I return from the Jetties.

The Hopkinsville & Cadiz R. R.

The subscription books of the H. & C. Railroad were circulated this week. In order to effect an organization it is necessary that $25,000 of stock be taken prior to the election of officers. Several books were circulated here and two were sent to Cadiz. About $1,000 has already been reported from this end of the proposed line and the books sent to Trigg have not yet been heard from. The stockholders have been called to meet next Tuesday night in this city, for permanent organization. It is likely that Judge J. L. Landes will be chosen President of the company. He is well qualified for the place and will push the work through energetically.

Maj. J. W. Robinson, of the C. & O., has made a careful estimate of the probable cost of building the 20 miles of road and it places the expense per mile at $7,300. This includes grading, trestling, bridging and ironing a wide gauge road, but does not provide for right of way or equipping with rolling stock, or the erection of depots, etc. This makes the estimated cost of building the road $146,000 and it is believed that it can be built and equipped for $200,000 and even less if convict labor be employed.

The plan is to let the corporation operate the road or else lease it to some other road that will use it as a competing line with the L. & N. The road when completed will be a crow-foot with Hopkinsville, Cadiz and a point on the Chesapeake and Ohio road as the terminal points. Of course the plans are all in embryo at present, but it has been suggested that the junction of these branches be on the Princeton road a few miles from the city. The route proposed for the main stem is out the Princeton road, then to bear to the left striking the Cadiz road at or near W. D. Summers' and then run directly west by McGhee's store and Old Bellevue to the Trigg line and thence by the nearest route to Cadiz. This route is of course subject to alteration and may be largely influenced by the disposition of the parties along the road to give the right of way. Hopkinsville stands ready to do her part. We believe $100,000 can be easily raised and if Cadiz will meet us at the line the building of the road is as good as assured. Communications from the people along the line are invited. Let us hear the opinions of those interested.

D. F. SMITHSON.

Mr. N. B. Shyer has moved into the house on South street, lately vacated by Mrs. Burbridge.

HERE AND THERE.

Howe's time is the city standard.
We handle all kinds of paper bags and flour sacks.

Rev. B. F. Orr will preach at the church at Casky Sunday, March 29th.

Polk Causler will have a car-load of mules for sale at his stable to-morrow.

As a Jeweler and optician, M. D. Kelly has the largest practical experience.

Rev. John Ferguson will preach at Concord church next Sunday Mar. 22, at 11 o'clock A. M.

Mr. N. T. Wright has gone to house-keeping in the house on the north east corner of Nashville and Virginia streets.

The best snow of the season fell Monday night, but like all of the preceding ones this season, it remained on the ground but a few hours.

There will be a Sacramental service at the Methodist Church next Sunday morning. Dr. H. C. Morrison will preach morning and evening.

Miss Lilly Swanwick, who visited this city last summer, died at the residence of her parents in Los Angeles, California, Mar. 4, 1885. She was in delicate health when here and her death is not a surprise to her friends here.

Mr. C. E. Tandy, of Fairview, inserts a conspicuous advertisement in his grocery and drug store, to-day's paper. He has recently opened up in business at Fairview with a choice stock of goods in his line and invites the patronage of the public through our columns. He is a clever, reliable young gentleman and we bespeak for him a liberal patronage from the people of Fairview and vicinity.

Messrs. Geo. E. Cooper & Co., of Nashville, Tenn., insert a conspicuous advertisement in this issue, and asks all who are in need of a galvanized iron cornice, dormer-windows, window caps etc., to give them a call, or write to them for prices. They have put up a great deal of work in this city, which has given entire satisfaction, and which stands as a recommendation of their firm.

Fred Wallis, a son of Allan Wallis, Esq., who is employed at Hubbard & Brownell's mill, was accidentally shot last Monday. He had a pistol in his pants pocket which was discharged in some way and the ball made a serious flesh wound in his thigh. He very narrowly escaped being fatally injured. At last accounts he was doing well and is on the road to recovery. Another warning commentary on the handling of firearms by half-grown boys.

John D. Peden, a well-to-do citizen of the vicinity of Fairview, this county, was adjudged a lunatic last Tuesday and sent to the Asylum as a pay patient. He was violently and dangerously insane and was brought into court hand-cuffed, bound securely and guarded by four men. He was a giant almost in strength and it was with great difficulty that he could be handled at all. He is 55 years old and the father of a family. His son was appointed to convey him to Anchorage, as the Asylum here was too full to accommodate him. Mr. Peden was insane about 12 years ago, but was pronounced cured. His mania was brought on again by an excited religious discussion with a neighbor.

The protracted meeting at the Baptist church is rapidly assuming the proportions of a genuine revival. Up to yesterday at least eighteen persons had united with the church. The following are the names of those joining since our last report: E. P. Fears, Misses Carrie Haine and Matie Wilson, Mrs. J. M. Daniel, Misses Nellie Long and Maudie Fleming, Sydney Ledford, Miss Laura Daniel, S. J. Crumrine, and Miss Rosa Steinhagen, by experience; Prof. J. M. Daniel, by letter; Robt. Weakley restored. Two of the little girls who first joined—Lida Bell Donaldson and Bettie Hanberry—were immersed in the baptistry Sunday afternoon. The others who joined by experience are candidates for baptism. The interest is constantly increasing. Rev. Mr. Gardner will continue to preach till the end of the week and perhaps longer.

In another column will be found a trial of Mr. Jno. T. Wright before a jury of his countrymen. From the verdict it will be seen that he occupies a place in the front rank of Hopkinsville's business men. He has on hand and keeps always in stock, a large and well selected stock of clothing for men and boys, hats, caps, boots, shoes and all kinds of goods, furnishing goods, which he sells at very reasonable prices. His salesmen are polite and attentive young gentlemen and those who visit his establishment are sure to be courteously treated and well served. Mr. Wright is a young man, but by strict attention to business and fair and square dealing, has built up a flourishing trade which is constantly increasing. He occupies the only house saved on the burned square last December, corner Main and Bridge streets. We commend him to the favorable consideration of the public.

Rolla Ryan.

Rolla Ryan, the elocutionist and character delineator, who is well known here, will give an entertainment at the Opera House next Monday evening at the usual hour. He has several assistants and his performance will be well worth the price charged. Admission 50 cents, gallery 25 cents.

MORE INTERESTING.

Circuit Court Resumes the Consideration of Commonwealth Cases.

The first three days of the week were taken up with civil cases of minor importance.

MONDAY, MARCH 17.

Mary Brooks vs. Reuben Brooks, decree of divorce granted.
Carry Willis vs. Wm. Willis, decree of divorce granted.

Reuben Leavell vs. John Thurmond. Plaintiff filed motion for new trial.

Peter Jenkins vs. L. & N. Railroad Co. On motion of Plaintiff this case is dismissed.

Edmund Casky vs. Franklin Bowles and Robt. Ely, damage suit. Trial by jury and judgment against defendants for $500—$250 each.

Z. Anthony Roberts vs. Rufus Moore. Trial by jury and judgment for Plaintiff for $50 and all costs.

The case of Mrs. Josie Bryce vs. the L. & N. Railroad Co., was begun and continued until Thursday 19th.

MARCH 17th and 18th.

Nothing of importance was done during these two days. A number of cases were called and continued, petitions were amended, etc., etc.

John R. Peden was tried for larceny and adjudged insane and taken to Anchorage Asylum.

On Wednesday the case of Miles G. Radford, charged with the murder of a man named Johnson two years ago, was called and again continued on account of the absence of two witnesses for the defense. Judge Grace stated in granting the continuance that he had been unusually indulgent on account of the extreme age of the prisoner and warned his counsel that the case must be tried in September without further postponement. Mr. Radford is more than 70 years old and is an uncle of Luther Radford, also under indictment for murder. The widow of the man Johnson whom he killed has since the indictment was found married a man named Tacker. The case is set for the 15th day of the September term.

THURSDAY, MARCH 19.

The case of Mrs. Bryce vs. the L. & N. R. R. for $20,000 was resumed the first thing in the morning and arguments by the counsel were heard. This case was for damages for the killing of John Bryce, a brakeman, and was tried at the last term and a verdict rendered for $1,500 for the widow, who is a sister of Esq. Benton Brown, of Crofton. At 3 o'clock the jury returned a verdict of $5,000 in favor of the plaintiff.

The trial of Wm. Handy for the murder of a man named Trotter, two or three years ago, was begun yesterday afternoon and will be continued to-day. The defense is continued by Hon. W. H. Cato, Judge J. I. Landes and Messrs. Renthall & Sittles.

Turkey Hunting Near Macedonia—Sickness and Death—Almost Fatal a Runaway—Social Items.

Macedonia, Ky. March 16, 1885. There is a great deal of sickness in the country at this writing.

Mr. A. L. Harrett, who has been very sick of pneumonia, is able to ride out and his brother W. S., is improving.

Mrs. W. A. White, who has been confined to her bed for over two weeks, is now up and is steadily improving and with the proper care will likely be able to be out again soon.

Mrs. J. N. Murphy and his daughter, Miss Mine, who have been visiting relation here for two or three days, will return to their home near Crofton to-day.

There are a good many turkeys in the woods just now. Several have been killed in the neighborhood lately. Mr. John Nave, I understand killed a gopher that weighed 24 lb after it was dressed.

Log rollings are in order. Our farmers are about all done sowing oats and burning plant land and some of them have been following for corn.

(Old mode) Johnnie Armstrong died of pneumonia fever at his home near Empire one day last week. He was taken immediately after eating heartily for dinner and died a day or two later. He was about 80 years of age.

Mrs. Miller, wife of W. S. Miller, died of pneumonia fever on last Tuesday evening and her brother Mr. M. L. Shelby, son of J. R. Shelby of this vicinity, died Wednesday morning of the same disease.

Last Friday evening as Misses Louisa and Susan P. Pool, of this place, were returning from a visit to their sister, Mrs. Newsum, in Caldwell county, when alone a mile from home their horses started at something by the way side and started to run. Miss Susan, the younger sister, however, succeeded in stopping her horse and as her sister's horse was about to pass she caught the rein and checked her sister's horse; but however until her sister lay prostrate on the ground. She screamed for help and Mr. Charlie Fletcher, who happened to be near by, went to her aid. They succeeded in getting the wounded girl upon her horse and though unconscious she sat in the saddle while her horse was cautiously led home. Her wound was pronounced fatal, but her friends have a hope of her recovery. Her spine is seriously affected.

Certificate of Pomroy's Chili Cure.
Ancient Hill, Ky., Aug. 9, 1884.
For a year or more, I had been having chills; and could find nothing to cure them. I tried quinine and many other things, but the chills continued. I got worse until I despaired of ever curing them. I finally tried Pomroy's chili cure and from the first dose of it until this time I have not had a chill. I am now in fine health and entirely cured of the chills. I say positively that Pomroy's chili cure is a splendid medicine and to my certain knowledge it will cure the worst case of chills. M. M. HANBERRY, Dec-31-84.

Bird Cages, Baskets, Wall Paper and a complete line of Notions at J. D. McPHERSON'S.

Go to S. F. Fischer's New Watch Repair Shop and have your watch repaired. Lovier's old stand.

Neither mental nor physical labor can be accomplished satisfactorily unless the system is in order. When you feel tired, languid, wearied without exertion, the mind slow to act, and requiring great mental effort, you can rest assured that your liver is not acting properly, and that nature requires assistance to help throw off impurities. There is no remedy that will accomplish this so mildly and yet effectually as Prickly Ash Bitters. A trial will satisfy you of its merits.
